PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 42 (Tennessee) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 42 (Tennessee) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

Housing statistics for census tracts are to be included in the Population reports on census tracts.

TENNESSEE

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—The Territory South of the River Ohio was organized in 1790, at which time it included the present State of Tennessee and parts of Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia. In 1796 Tennessee was admitted to the Union as the sixteenth State with boundaries substantially as at present. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 3,291,718. The State has a land area of 41,797 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 78.8 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 69.5 in 1940. Among the States, Tennessee ranked sixteenth in population and thirty-third in land area.

In 1800, the first year in which it was enumerated as a State, Tennessee had a population of 105,602 (table 1). In 1950, 150 years later, its population was more than 31 times as large. The increase of 1,915,014 in the nineteenth century accounted for three-fifths of the gain over the 150 years and brought the 1900 population to 2,020,616, or 19 times the 1800 population. The largest numerical increase and most rapid rate of growth in the twentieth century came between 1940 and 1950. The gain of 375,877 for the decade, which was also the largest decennial increase in the history of the State, represented a gain of 12.9 percent over the 2,915,841 persons enumerated in 1940.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landladies, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Tennessee comprised 1,452,602 persons, or 44.1 percent of the population of the State (table 1). This population was living in the 71 urban places in the State and in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the Knoxville, Memphis, and Nashville Urbanized Areas and the Tennessee part of the Chattanooga Urbanized Area. Two-thirds of the urban population of the State was living in urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Tennessee comprised 1,839,116 persons, or 55.9 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 114,658 persons, or 6.2 percent, were living in the 57 incorporated and 16 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Tennessee included the following components: (1) The 1,264,159 inhabitants of the 64 incorporated places of 2,500 or more; (2) the 56,087 inhabitants of the 7 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 or more; and (3) 132,356 persons living in other territory included in the urban-fringe areas of the Knoxville, Memphis, and Nashville Urbanized Areas and the Tennessee part of the urban fringe of the Chattanooga Urbanized Area. Since there were no places classified as urban under special rule in Tennessee according to the old definition, the first element comprised the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements—188,443—represents the gain in the urban population of Tennessee which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1790 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the urban population nearly quadrupled between 1900 and 1950, rising from 326,639 to 1,264,159 (table 1). The largest numerical increase and most rapid rate of growth during the 50-year period took place in the decade 1920 to 1930. The increase of 236,953 between 1940 and 1950 represented a gain of 23.1 percent over the 1940 urban population of 1,027,206. The 15 cities of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the State shared in the growth of urban population between 1940 and 1950. The rates of growth in these cities ranged from 2.2 percent for Chattanooga to 61.7 percent for Morristown (table 4). In 1900, 1 out of every 20 persons in the State was living in the one city of 100,000 inhabitants or more; by 1950, 1 out of every 4 was living in the four cities of this size (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory more than doubled over the 50-year period, rising from 16.2 to 38.4 percent (table 1).

The rural population of Tennessee, which was 1,693,977 in 1900, increased to 2,027,559 in 1950 (table 1). In contrast to the steady increase in the urban population, the rural population declined in two decades of the 50-year period. The rates of growth in the remaining three decades were substantially below those for the urban population. The gain of 138,924 between 1940 and 1950 was at the rate of 7.4 percent. The proportion of the population of Tennessee living in rural territory declined from 83.8 to 61.6 percent over the 50-year period.

Counties.—The 95 counties in Tennessee ranged in size from Moore with a population of 3,948 to Shelby with a population of 482,393 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, 52 of the counties increased in population. All but 3 of the counties which gained were included among the 88 which had had increases in the previous decade. The most rapid rate of increase between 1940 and 1950—124.1 percent—was recorded for Anderson County. The largest numerical increase—124,143—was experienced by Shelby County, which also had had the largest numerical increase in the previous decade. Nearly seven-tenths of the population gain for the State between 1940 and 1950 was accounted for by the four counties of 100,000 inhabitants or more—Shelby, Davidson, Knox, and Hamilton.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Tennessee are the civil districts. The incorporated cities and towns form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated or unincorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate minor civil divisions, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and 1950 Census in the boundaries of areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 1017-1023, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—Tennessee had 238 places incorporated as cities and towns in 1950 and 23 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 1,410,123 persons living in the incorporated places, 145,964 were in the 174 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. There were 80,545 persons living in the unincorporated places, 24,458 of whom were living in the 16 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places ranged in size from Dale Hollow town with a population of 5 to Memphis city with a population of 396,000.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census comprises all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were three urbanized areas entirely within Tennessee and one partly within the State. Of the 970,949 persons living in urbanized areas in Tennessee, 826,117 were living in the central cities and 144,832 in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas included 15,736 inhabitants in five incorporated places and 129,096 persons in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.

2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.

3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.

4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

² Part of Lauderdale County acquired by Mississippi County, Ark., in 1946.

³ Includes 132,356 persons in urban territory outside of urban places.

⁴ Population of Territory South of the River Ohio, including area now constituting parts of Mississippi, Alabama, and Georgia.

URBANIZED AREA MAPS

The four urbanized areas in Tennessee, for which statistics are shown in table 9, are depicted in the following maps. The shaded areas, in combination, comprise the urbanized areas. To assist in locating the exact external boundaries of the areas, each boundary feature (street segment, political boundary, or other) has been assigned a number. The boundary segments thus numbered are shown on the map and the features to which they apply are presented in the following key.
